

Mount Everest is the highest mountain on Earth, located in the Himalayas. It stands at 8,848 meters (29,029 feet) tall, and is considered one of the most challenging feats for mountain climbers to conquer. Many adventurers seek to reach the summit each year, but the treacherous conditions and high risk of altitude sickness make it a dangerous endeavor.